Foreword to the Index

This replacement index has been revised, expanded and updated to include index treatment of legislation approved as of April 27, 1999. In order to provide a more effective guide to the statutory law, each section of the District of Columbia Code, as well as each entry in the 1998 index, was reexamined in light of subsequent amendments, enactments and repeals.

The general index contains treatment of the laws compiled in the District of Columbia Code, the Constitution of the United States and the various rules of court promulgated by the local courts of the District. Statutory provisions are referred to in the index by section number (e.g., §27-123). The Constitution, which is set out in Volume 1, and the court rules, which are set out in two soft-bound volumes are identified by abbreviations, a table of which follows this foreword.

The general index is a topical index, not a random word index. Random entries in an index to statutes are misleading since they result in split or partial treatment. Therefore, we have chosen to use a systematic arrangement of main topical headings in order to avoid this split treatment. Main headings in the general index treat subject matter exhaustively, unless cross references are made to other main headings.

Users often inquire as to LEXIS Law Publishing's use of cross references in indexes. Cross references serve to keep indexes to a manageable size by reducing the amount of repetition of treatment under different headings. To make the cross references even more useful and efficient, group section references, which cite the user to the principal statutory treatment of the subject, have been attached to many of our cross references; this provides the user with the option to ignore the cross reference altogether by going to the code for the cited material.

Main headings were derived from the language of the District of Columbia Code, from phraseology commonly used in the courts of the District and from terminology commonly used in the legal profession. In addition, an effort was made to employ phrases and terms commonly applied to District of Columbia Code sections, such as frequently used nonlegal terms.

We solicit your help in keeping this index as usable as possible and ask that you inform us of any popular names that may have eluded us by returning the business reply cards found inside the back cover of each index volume. You may also use the cards to tell us of any errors we have made or improvements you think we should make. LEXIS Law Publishing also maintains a toll-free Index hotline (1-800-897-7922) for use by those needing immediate help in locating a particular section or by those desiring to make comments or suggestions. Additionally, you may reach the Indexers by toll-free fax (1-800-643-1280); or by Internet E-mail (llpindexing@lexis-nexis.com). All suggestions, questions or comments receive serious consideration, and all communications receive a copy. For non-index questions and comments, or to place orders, Customer Service may be reached by toll-free telephone number (1-800-562-1197), or by toll-free fax (1-800-643-1280).

The general index does not attempt to cover each topic in the vast field of law but refers only to those materials contained in the District of Columbia Code. A thorough knowledge of the format and terminology of the District of Columbia Code is essential to the use of this index as a guide to subject matter.

A few basic rules for using this index are:

(1) Gain familiarity with the contents of the District of Columbia Code and the index. Knowledge of the arrangement, terminology, topical treatment, analyses and reference system of both the code and the index is essential and must be acquired through examination and study.

(2) Consult the principal subject and not the secondary subject. Thus, for motor vehicle registration, look under motor vehicle registration and plates, and not registration; for notary fees, look under notaries public and not under fees; for sales of alcoholic beverages, look under alcoholic beverages and not under sales.

(3) Look for the noun and not the adjective. Thus, for foreign corporations, look under corporations and not under foreign; for primary elections, look under elections and not under primaries. An exception to this rule is made for commonly used phrases or terms of art that are expressed in unitary phrases. Thus, for wrongful death, look under wrongful death and not under death.

(4) Consult the most pertinent subject. Thus, for depositions, look under depositions and not under evidence or testimony or witnesses; for appointment of executors, look under executors and administrators and not under wills or descent and distribution.

(5) Consult allied headings. If your search under one heading is to no avail, try another allied heading. Thus, if a search under the heading park police, United States is fruitless, try metropolitan police or capitol police or other related headings. Each section has itemized entries, but perhaps they appear under headings that may not have initially occurred to you.

(6) Use cross references. Pay close attention to and make full use of the index cross references.
